

HCCS Speech Student Lecture Series

Outstanding Speech Students

The Speech Student Lecture Series was developed to give outstanding speech students the opportunity to impart their knowledge and experiences on to fellow students. This project also helps empower these students and provide a living example as to what they can accomplish with a little hard work. Students participating in the lecture series not only share their knowledge, but further hone their speaking skills.

Frank Grados

My name is Frank Grados, I'm 20 years old. I am currently at HCC, looking to transfer over to UH. My major is marketing. I'm a very curious guy; I like to study various subjects on my own time. Subjects such as history, economics, psychology, sociology, physics, music history, speech, leadership fascinate me.

I'm a social marketer for Seacret, the best skin care in the world. I'm striving to make that my profession. I'm a big dreamer and enjoy talking about my goals and dreams. My biggest goal in life is to be a motivational speaker and fitness expert. Working out and leading a healthy lifestyle is one of biggest passions. I only strive to make people realize the greatness within them.

Tanner Lingbloom

Tanner Lingbloom was born in the Pacific Northwest up in Washington State in a small town two hours north of Seattle near the Canadian border. While going through school, he was active in both community and school theater productions and musicals while also taking improvement lessons on the side. During his time in high school, Tanner successfully ran for president of his Future Business Leaders of America chapter and focused much of his time to public speaking events and group presentations, an effort that eventually took him to the state finals when competition came around. After graduating high school, Tanner moved down to Houston with his family and has been balancing working full time with being a full time student at HCC. He plans to eventually graduate from the University of Houston and become a high school history teacher.
